

Geoffrey Thompson

Geoffrey Thompson is an occupational health nurse with a background in cross-cultural health, community development and organizational change management. He has a Master's degree in Public Health and has extensive international experience delivering healthcare services in diverse community settings. Geoffrey leads OHC's strategic initiative on workplace psychological health and safety and specializes in promoting positive workplace mental health through joint worker and management training on how to identify and control on-the-job psychosocial hazards.